Leader's Line ...

Get Out Early

JIM THOMASON, PRESIDENT

Is it summer already? It seems like we just went to the Lower Owens (which is still fishable by the way). With the minimal rainfall we've received, run-off may already be over in many places (or at the least done much sooner than normal). Many creeks are already at mid-summer flows. That means you need to get out there early this year to fish your favorite river while it's still flowing. The same will hold true for some of our lakes in the fall if you're a Stillwater fan.

I got an early start which turned out to be a little too early. Craig Bond and I stopped by the South Fork of the Kings River in Kings Canyon National Park following a trip to Hume Lake. It was disappointing to see so much white water as we descended into the canyon. While the run-off was not nearly as high as normal, it was high enough to make most of the river un-fishable. We were able to get above some of the feeder creeks and find some fishable water. The fish count was low but if you're not going to catch a lot of fish, it's hard to beat the view standing in that river. Hume Lake was new to both of us and our catch rate improved from minimal to moderate by the time our 2 days were up. There's a reason they say 10% of the fisherman catch 90% of the fish as we learned afterwards talking to a few that have fished there frequently.

As I've said in previous articles, fly fishing presents a myriad of opportunities to fish all kinds of water for all kinds of fish. That may be even more important this year due to low water flows. We have an abundance of surf in the area which requires very little equipment and we have several club members that would be happy to help get you started. There are shad coming in this month in Central/Northern California and bass are all over the Southland. And don't forget the feisty little bluegill (and some that are not so little).

Of course, our trips this month are not dependent on run-off as we'll be visiting Newport Bay and San Diego Bay. We've been fishing Newport Bay in March but moved it to June this year to hopefully improve the experience with warmer water temperatures. San Diego Bay seems to fish well year round and I highly recommend that outing if you can make it. Thirty-plus fish days are not uncommon and the views from the bay are fantastic.

Following my own previous advice, I'm going to be branching out this summer and try fishing for carp (there, I said it in writing). They've long had a

Newport Bass Tournament is Near!

MATT RICKERD, TRIP HOST

Time to dust off the saltwater fly and conventional tackle; the annual Newport bay bass tournament is here! Come down and compete June 8th for a chance to get your name on the perpetual trophy and bragging rights for the year.

Rules are simple, the longest bass (spotted bay, sand bass, or calico) caught on artificial lure with 6# line or lighter. Come down to the pre trip meeting on May 29th at 7:00 PM and we will talk about tackle, techniques, fishing locations, rental boats/launch areas, and measure time. I will also provide some lead-heads for those in need.

Share a beautiful day on the water with some old or new friends close to home. This will be my 30th year fishing this tourney and it is always different and interesting since this or the next cast could be the one.

Besides, I don't care if one of my family members wins; I just need someone to beat Jeff Sadler!

June Monthly Meeting

PABLO GRABIEL, 1ST VICE PRESIDENT

As we begin the new club year it is exciting to think of our opportunities for having fun, to learn from one another, and to fish together.

I first became aware of this club while I was in Indianapolis, Indiana, working on a computer project. Looking for something to do in the evenings while away from home I asked the employees at work for suggestions of activities. Aside from the usual county fair, museums, and music venues someone suggested I try hooking up with a bowling league, etc, and someone mentioned a fishing club. After getting the information, I found out the meeting nights and attended my first fly fishing club meeting.

The members were very warm and accepting and I watched a demonstrations on how to tie a woolly bugger. By the next month's meeting I had my first fly tying vise, a bobbin, scissors, thread and some hooks. And so for four months I attended the club meetings and got to know more and more members. As I was preparing to end my contract and return home I was bidding farewell to the members whom I had gotten to know. It was then that I was asked by a member, "Oh, you're from LA, do you belong to the Long Beach Casting Club?" I asked him how he came to know of the club and he mentioned that it was one of the best in the country, and since I was new to fly fishing, perhaps I should look it up when I returned home. I really dropped the ball, and did not look the club up.

Then one day I am finishing a round of golf when I noticed some people casting on a pond. After my round was completed I strolled over to watch. Who else, but Howard Uller would be there, sporting a UCLA hat. He noticed my shirt from the same school and greeted me. I asked some questions, found out when the meetings were held and resolved to come to the very next one. There I began to meet the wonderful members of the Long Beach Casting Club.

I hope during this year to start giving back to you, the club members, as I have received so much from you while learning some of the nuances of fly fishing and all the enjoyment that it can provide. I look forward to putting together some exciting programs for our monthly meeting that we may all continue to grow as fishermen and as friends.

As of this article I am still making arrangements for June's monthly speaker. As soon as this has been finalized I will arrange to have an email announcement sent out informing the membership of the speaker and their topic.

In the meantime, I look forward to seeing all of you soon.

reputation as a trash fish but their value has risen considerably in recent years. I've caught a couple before and know what a thrill it is when they show you your backing. Big Bear Lake has millions of them and I'm hoping to unravel the mystery to catching them there. Might as well take advantage of what our area has to offer. If you've had success there with carp (or elsewhere), drop me a line. I promise not to mention your name in future articles.

So no matter what you're fishing for, get out there early and often.

San Diego Bay Jam IV

JOE AUSTIN, TRIP LEADER

It's time once again to hit that dynamite fishing hole down south; yes, it's the San Diego Bay Jam. This is number IV and it's scheduled for the weekend of 15 June 2013. As in previous years the plan will be to make Saturday the "official" day some folks (me included) will likely make a weekend of it.

Our trip last June (2012) was a great outing with all participants into fish on Saturday. The catch included spotted and barred sand bass, yellowfin and black, mackerel and even a small halibut. Other species may include: calico bass bonito, corvina, sculpin and even bonefish right around the corner in Glorietta Bay. There were a number of doubles in the mix (a typical bay rig consists of a fly and dropper; we'll discuss rigging at the pre-trip meeting). Since the tides are running about the same this year, we might expect to find similar fishing action again this year.

For the previous Bay Jams our launch spot has been at Tidelands Park. Because of its unique location Tidelands has lighter (and slower) boat traffic than many other places on the bay. In addition there is a lot of good structure to fish close to the launch point and it can easily be explored by float tube, pontoon boat, or kayak.

WHEN: The weekend of June 14-16, 2013 with arrival in San Diego sometime between Friday and fishing time on Saturday morning. The main event will be Saturday, the fishing will start about 6:00 AM. We can use a similar schedule for those fishing on Friday and/or Sunday. I'm not sure how much leeway there is on the 6:00 AM time but I've started unloading my gear earlier than this.

WHERE: Tidelands Park on Coronado at the foot of the Coronado Bridge. Check the location online with Google Maps.

LAUNCH LOCATION: Easy beach launch from sandy beach, short paddle out to moored boats which mark a good place to start loosening up your casting arm.

EQUIPMENT, FLIES, ETC.: Saltwater compatible 6 or 8 weight rods (or even 10 wt.); sink tip or shooting head sinking lines for when the tide is rapidly flowing and intermediate lines for slack-tide conditions. Some flies to consider: Dave's Liberace Clouser, Newport Special, ghost shrimp patterns, Piconi's Prowler, Newport Special, Doug Uyematsu's DUI and New Beak, and last but not least Kim's Surf Worm.

POST FISHING LUNCHEON: Non-fishing activities will be discussed at the Pre-Trip Meeting and if there is enough interest we can set up a BBQ luncheon on Saturday following the fishing.

LODGING: Participants to make their own arrangements for accommodations. There are numerous inexpensive motels as well as campsites in the area (book now). We will discuss a group get-together for Saturday night celebrations, etc., at the Pre-Trip Meeting.

PRE-TRIP MEETING: Wednesday, June 5, 2013 at 7:00 PM.

The Fifteenth Brookie Bash

JEFF SADLER, PAST PRESIDENT

Brookies, Rainbows, Browns, Cutts and yes, maybe Goldens... a chance for The Sierra Grand Slam.

Since 2007 only 14 of us have won this most prestigious award. You can be next with a little luck and perseverance. RULE: Catch all 5 species on this trip with the Brookie being caught in the Rock Creek drainage on Saturday.

Brookies and Rookies were made for each other!

Probably as close to a guarantee for catching trout that there is. An absolute guarantee for a lot of fun (unless you're a Brookie). Older (more experienced) members will assist the beginners until they too become Brookie bashers.

WHEN: The back-country hike itself starts at 8:00 AM, Saturday, July 20 from the trailhead at Mosquito Flats Campground (Elevation starts at approximately 10,000 feet and goes up from there).

WHERE: Midway between Bishop and Mammoth on 395 is Rock Creek (Tom's Place). Drive up (West) Rock Creek 10.7 miles until you can't drive any more and you're at Mosquito Flats Campground, park only in authorized spots.

THE TRAIL: Good trail with Rock Creek on the left. Moderate elevation change. About 1 mile in is Heart Lake which looks like a good meeting point and is midway to Long Lake. We will pass or be near a half dozen named lakes and a bunch of smaller ponds plus connecting creeks.

PRE-TRIP: Wednesday, July 10, 7:00 PM

LODGING & STUFF: Chateau de Montagne in Mammoth. I will arrange for condos as the requests come in. It generally is around $30 - $35 per night per person. But I will only get a condo if I have enough folks to mostly fill it to save cost. The problem is volume and mix. Volume is obvious but it's hard to fill rooms with king sized beds (holds two) with only guys (or gals). Also, the availability can be spotty so the sooner I know, the better arrangements we can make.

I will honor 1st come, 1st reserved. I request $100 for Thursday-Friday-Saturday nights, $75 for Friday-Saturday and $35 for Saturday only. The only request I honor is cash or check made out to me, Jeff Sadler.

Project Healing Waters Fly Fishing

CAROLE KATZ, NATIONAL TRUSTEE

This must sound a little repetitive by now: we won two awards in this year's national PHWFF rod building program. Two out of nine. That means two of the veterans in our program will get to select a national fly fishing trip as their prizes. More than 440 rod kits were ordered this year and the builders have become very competitive, learning elaborate wrapping techniques. Justin Robles won third place among first-time rod builders and Mike Escarcida won third place in the category for those who have eye or upper extremity disabilities. The list of the volunteers who have made rod building such a success is long and led by Alan Ross and Joe Richter. They all deserve a big thank you for the many hours of work and enthusiastic support. To see the winning rods check out the following webpage: <http://www.hookhack.com/html/projecthealingwaters.2013RBCwinners.html>.

The seventy minute Steve Hasty Healing Waters Documentary is finished and has been submitted for inclusion in several film festivals. You can Google it to see a trailer. Part of the documentary was shot at our clubhouse, with interviews of several of our participants about our rod building program. Sometime this fall we'll have a movie night to show the film and some of the rods built by our vets. We won't have all the best rods, however, because several were donated to raffles in order to raise money for the program.

Speaking of raising money, we had a banner spring in that regard. First there was the Fred Hall Show, under the leadership of Jeff Sadler, with a net of $5057. In April, our new friends at Santa Ana River Lakes held a fundraiser that brought in $9331, which was followed by the One Fly Surf event that earned $3020. May 4 was Breathless Agony from which we get $1000. Jim Wilcox has been building custom rod jigs with beautiful woods and donating the money to PHWFF.

All these major fundraisers, in addition to the smaller amounts that come in during the year, will fund our trips this summer.

With fundraising still in mind, I have two trip donations that I would like to somehow use if anyone would make a modest donation to PHWFF. One is half day of guided saltwater fishing with Vaughn Podmore. Huntington Beach, Long Beach and Newport Beach, walk and wade or boat. Normally $200-375 for one or two anglers.

The other is a four night, three day guided fishing for two at Falcon's Ledge in Altamont, Utah. This is a two-for-one deal, so someone would have to pay the Lodge their fee for one angler ($2235) and the second goes free. These trips are donations to benefit PHWFF so please make a small donation to the program. Please contact me at katzhogan@cox.net.

The annual trip to Bishop is May 14-17. We love this trip because the people of Bishop really make us feel welcome and feed us at the VFW Post after days of fishing with guides who generously donate their time. In June, six vets are going on an exploratory trip to Redding to fish with PHWFF volunteers from that area; their program was started by former LBCC member Dick Recchia and is thriving. In July, the newer vets are going to the Big Horn to be spoiled by the Stroda's of Leaning Tree Lodge, and the more experienced vets will be going to West Yellowstone later in the summer. Our fundraising makes all of this possible and we thank everyone for their support, whether in time or money.

It's been a terrific program. We have a Project Healing Waters – Long Beach Facebook page if you would like to see more photos and information. If you'd like to volunteer or donate, please call or email me.

The Green River 35

JEFF SADLER, PAST PRESIDENT

Yes, 35 LBCC members and guests showed up for the Green River trip this year totally filling Red Canyon Lodge and Trout Creek rooms and using all local guides available. Dutch John's last census was 145 so we could vote in our own city council.

Two of us didn't make it past Provo as member Paul Orseth suffered a brain aneurism. Paul is recovering from major surgery and is at home with some procedures ahead of him. He was lucky in several ways: he had his good friend and fishing partner Stan Reynolds standing by with him. He was in a city with major universities and excellent healthcare facilities, and he wasn't halfway down the river in the middle of nowhere when it occurred. Let's all wish Paul a speedy and complete recovery and see him next year on the Green.

Here's a great picture of 28 out of 35 at the Saturday night dinner, the 29th is chief guide Boomer.

You may notice the camo paint and peanuts on our faces which serves two purposes: we can sneak up on the little fishies and those of you who didn't go won't know who had such a great time and hold it against us. (This is also a Yash tradition for many years now.) The two things we cannot control turned out very, very well.

The weather was nearly perfect with the day before we got there starting out at 10 degrees and not getting much warmer. Our first day was cold but tolerable. It got progressively warmer with the last day in t-shirts.

The day we left was scheduled to snow.

The river ran a very low but consistent flow with drift fishing from boats productive but wade/walk fishing more challenging. I spent two days hunting dry flies and only casting to rising or cruising fish. I didn't get big numbers but those I got, I caught on my terms. Fantastic!

The Green is very scud rich and scuds have high concentrations of beta carotene which causes the trout to be brilliantly colored. The fish were exceptional this year with the spawning female rainbows being almost black with a vermillion stripe. The sizes ranged from 16" to 20" with a few over. The brown and bow above are typical. I caught a whitefish on A section which was unusual but several were caught on B (and there are even more in C — ed.).

In retrospect I was worried about the large crowd but it turned out not to be a problem at all. So next year we'll just let loose and see what happens. My advice is to find your partner and sign up early, real early.

This is NOT the A Team!

Fly of the Month: Bullet-Head Cicada

JOHN VAN DERHOOF, EDITOR

You could always hear their drone at stream side but it hasn't been until recently that cicadas have become popular as a fly fishing pattern. Now, thanks to their use on the Green River, cicadas have become recognized as a deadly pattern for trout. Another nice benefit is that it also doubles as a great stonefly, hopper and cricket pattern as well!

Cicadas have been popular in New Zealand for years now. I remember reading about tiers from the land of the kiwi imitating them when I was kid in the '60s. This was about the same time that matukas were being introduced to American fly fishers. Technically, we have been using them for a long time but only by mistake. I doubt that a trout sees much of a difference between an adult giant stonefly pattern and a cicada pattern...

On the Green River the cicada is most often used as a dropper/indicator to a nymph or a midge pattern. There are times however when the fly by itself is quite effective. Tie up the pattern in both black and olive green with emphasis on the black. Another idea would be to tie it in a yellow and tan with rubberlegs as a hopper pattern.

If you are planning a trip to the Green River or a myriad of other western streams this spring or summer be sure to include the Bullet-head Cicada in your fly box.

Materials for tying the Bullet-head Cicada:

- Hook: Tiemco #2312 or equivalent style in sizes 10 to 6
- Thread: Black or olive 6/0 or 8/0 or color to match the natural you're imitating
- Body: Rear – Black or olive polypropylene yarn twisted and tied on extended body style
Front/Head – Black or olive dubbing
- Underwing: Fluorescent green Krystal Flash
- Overwing: Black or very dark brown elk hair or mane folded back bullet style
- Indicator: Fluorescent green deer hair or glow bug yarn

Instructions for tying the Bullet-head Cicada:

1. Attach your thread to the hook at the headspace and wind down to the mid-point of the shank. Tie in the one or two strands of polypropylene depending on the size of the fly. Twist the yarn very tightly. Hold the yarn at the end with one hand and at the point where you want the extended body to end with your other hand and fold the end back to the hook shank and it tie down. Let the yarn twist itself into a tight rope. If everything looks okay then cut off the excess if not re-twist the yarn tighter or looser to achieve the desired effect.
2. Advance the thread to the headspace. Remove the desired amount of elk hair or mane and stack the tips. I recommend elk mane, as it is longer and more durable. Measure the length of the wing carefully making sure that the wing, when folded back, will extend from immediately behind the eye to a point just beyond the end of the extended portion of the body. Tie the wing in at the eye with the tips going forward.
3. Apply dubbing to the thread and wind the dubbing back to where the rear portion of the body was tied down to the shank. Tie in 6 to 12 strands of Krystal Flash as an underwing. They should extend to a point just short of the end of the body.
4. Grab the tips of the wing and fold them back over the body. If necessary give the wing a slight twist to help keep the strands together. Tie the wing down where the dubbing and extended part of the body meet. Whip finish and apply some head cement at this point before tying in the indicator.
5. Both materials are tied in using the same method. Use 20 to 30 strands of deer hair with all of the underhair removed or a single strand of glow bug yarn. Lay the material on top of the wing and parallel to the hook. Wrap over the material with a couple turns of thread without letting it rotate with the pull of the thread. Whip finish the thread before you trim the indicator to shape. Pull the ends of the deer hair or glow bug yarn up and trim them into a very small dome with your scissors.

Help Wanted

MICHAEL SCHWEIT, PRESIDENT SWC FFF

The Southwest Council Federation of Fly Fishers (SWC FFF) is in need of someone to coordinate some of our events. One of the purposes of the Council is to increase outreach to the general public. Some of these events include the Fred Hall Show in both Long Beach and Del Mar, Sport Chalet, Fly Fishing Film Tour and others that come our way throughout the year. The job would be to keep track of these events, decide how many and what type of volunteers are needed for each one and generally be the liaison between the Council and these groups.

If you are the type to help us create a movement towards more fly anglers in SoCal and Southern Nevada, we want you.

This description makes it sound like a full time job.

In reality, would only take a few hours each month. For more information, contact:

Michael Schweit (818) 601 9702
or president@southwestcouncilfff.org.

Please join us in this quest to show everyone we have the greatest sport around.
